

Training Manual on IP Crime Prosecution

10. IP Crime on the Internet

Thousands of web sites selling fakes

Web sites gather links to infringing copies

The screenshot shows the The Pirate Bay website interface. The browser window has the address bar set to <http://194.71.107.83/top/201>. The website features a search bar with a "Pirate Search" button and a dropdown menu for file types (Audio, Video, Applications, Games, Porn, Other). Below the search bar, the "Top 100" section displays a list of torrents. Each entry includes a type (Video/Movies), name, upload date, size, and uploader. To the right of the list, a separate box shows the "The Pirate Bay" logo and a search bar with a "Pirate Search" button and a "I'm Feeling Lucky" button. The bottom of the page shows a Windows taskbar with various application icons and a system clock indicating 16:23 on 30.06.2014.

Other web sites “stream” content without copying – especially live sports

IP Crime and Internet

Internet + digitisation of entertainment products
= massive online copyright piracy

Cheap global reach via WWW + problems of cross-border enforcement + efficient global trade & postal services = massive importation of counterfeits

Where is the offence committed?

Needed investigative powers and skills
